Module 8

The content of my GitHub was extremely disorganized. All the different PDFs of different modules were organized in alphabetical order, along with the "index.html," and "style.css," and the GitHub Conduit. Alphabetical order is the default on my computer, however, this is not the most effective organization strategy for my GitHub, especially with addition of Module 7, and the other incoming Modules. In order to organize my GitHub, I decided to make a folder for each Module, and put the respective contents of that module into the folder. In this process, I am not exactly sure what I did, but I some how messed it up, and none of the links on my course page worked. Through simplifying, reorganizing and making sure all the file/folder names matched those in TextWrangler, I was able to fix it and make all my links. This module helped me organize my GitHub, and gave me confidence in my ability to code, because I was able to fix my mistakes.
